OUTDOOR SACRED SPACES

INTRODUCTION

We are excited to share with you the Outdoor Sacred Spaces Guide in the Archdiocese of Indianapolis. This project was a team effort of the Creation Care Ministry and the leadership at each sacred space.

It is our hope this resource of outdoor sacred prayer and art will encourage you to rediscover a religious vision of God's creation, think about your own impact on our planet, and support the communities who are the caretakers of these beautiful spaces we have in our community. As you visit, we encourage you to share your photos and journeys with us and via social media. We have also provided some considerations before you go on the following page.

BACKGROUND

In mid-May each year, the Catholic Church celebrates a special "Laudato Si' Week", commemorating the publication of Pope Francis' Encyclical "Laudato Si': On Care for Our Common Home." Among the many themes of this encyclical, Pope Francis speaks of our interconnectedness with each other and the natural world. Truly the events in recent times have made this evident and also given us an opportunity and little "nudge" to explore and create a more peaceful, loving, and harmonious world. We created this guide as a small contribution during the 5th Anniversary Year for Laudato Si' (2020) for the people of the Archdiocese of Indianapolis to know and discover our local treasures and a new spirit of integral ecology.

WHAT IS INCLUDED IN THIS GUIDE?

In this guide you will find the outdoor areas of each site highlighted. Please contact each site to confirm hours and visitor information. We encourage you to take return trips and discover their beauty in the future!

As we compiled this guide we became aware of many outdoor sacred spaces outside of the Archdiocese and of other faith traditions that we hope to include in future versions. If you know of any, are part of a parish with a unique outdoor space, have other feedback or would like to help us translate this guide into Spanish, please let us know.

WHO IS THE CREATION CARE COMMISSION?

Creation Care Ministry in the Archdiocese of Indianapolis began in 2015 at the encouragement of then Archbishop Joseph Tobin. The commission, composed of volunteers from different parishes and under the guidance of Pastoral Ministries, provides education about creation care and outreach to parishes, people and priests of the Archdiocese. We seek to help parishes reduce their environmental impact, and to facilitate sustainable actions on the Archdiocesan level.

Prepare for pilgrimage...and have fun!

Cemeteries

Around the Archdiocese

When strolling through a Catholic cemetery visitors are immediately reminded of the holiness of the grounds - statues, symbols of faith, and prayer gardens adorn the land where the faithful rest. These sacred spaces are a tangible sign of God's presence at the completion of life's journey and the promise of the resurrection. Visiting the grave of a loved one may evoke sadness, yet the Catholic cemetery is a sign of hope in God and of our reverence for the remains of the deceased. Experience peace as you visit, immersed in the beauty of creation and surrounded by those who have shared our faith. Listed here are cemeteries in the Catholic association and those on the grounds of sites in this guide. Some parishes also have cemeteries associated with their properties.

Background information on saints, sacred spaces, and spirituality.

Benedictines in Indiana

The story of all Benedictines begins in sixth-century Italy. St. Benedict of Nursia, wrote a Rule for monks living in communities dedicated to prayer and work. Monasteries for men (and then for women) were established, and monasticism spread throughout Europe. In the mid-1800's the first Benedictines arrived in the United States to establish permanent monasteries. St. Meinrad Archabbey was founded directly from the Abbey of Einsiedeln in Switzerland. The first Benedictine women arrived from St. Walburga Abbey in Eichstätt, Germany, settled in St. Marys, Pennsylvania, and established multiple foundations, including one in Erie, Pennsylvania. From Erie, sisters went to Covington, Kentucky, where they founded St. Walburg Monastery. The Covington sisters founded Monastery Immaculate Conception in Ferdinand, Indiana that founded Our Lady of Grace Monastery in Beech Grove. In a midday address on July 11, 2005 (the feast day of St. Benedict), Pope Benedict XVI encouraged us to live as St. Benedict - to "prefer nothing to the love of Christ." The Rule of St Benedict remains one of the great classics of Christian spirituality.

Our Lady of Grace Monastery

Paul C. Schulte, Archbishop of Indianapolis, had a desire to have a home for the elderly in his diocese. In 1955 he approached the Ferdinand sisters with the prospect of opening such a facility. Because the Ferdinand community was relatively large, the sisters decided to found a daughter house and an academy for high school girls, in addition to the archbishop's request. The mission of the Sisters of St. Benedict is to seek God in everyone and everything and to live in community founded on prayer, work, and hospitality. Throughout history, Benedictines have been referred to as "ecobuilders" because they look at the long-term impact of the land. Benedictines are also called to care for all the tools of the monastery with reverence, which includes its natural resources. The Sisters at Our Lady of Grace Monastery exemplify these values, starting with their work in the 1950s to transform the 30 acres of swampland that, in addition to the monastery building, now includes St. Paul Hermitage, a retirement and nursing care facility for the aged and the Benedict Inn Retreat & Conference Center, housed in the former academy.

Return to Sacred Spaces

Our Lady of Fatima

Between May and October 1917, the Virgin Mary appeared to three children—Francisco and Jacinta Marto and their cousin Lúcia dos Santos near Fatima, Portugal. Mary asked the children to pray the rosary for world peace, for the end of World War I, for sinners, and for the conversion of Russia. She gave them three secrets and five prayer, including the prayer said for forgiveness of sins at the end of each rosary decade. Mary promised the children that during the last of her six appearances she would provide a "sign" so people would believe in the apparitions and in her message. A crowd of about 70,000 people gathered on October 12, 1917 to see the miracle that Mary had promised. After appearing to the children for some time, Mary cast a transparent veil over the sun and multi-colored lights were strewn across the landscape. The sun began to spin and appeared to veer toward earth before jumping back to its place in the sky. Devotion to Our Lady of Fatima continues to bring hope and comfort in suffering and uncertainty, just as she did to the people of Portugal embroiled in war. The Feast of Our Lady of Fatima is celebrated on May 13.

Saint Mother Theodore Guerin

Saint Mother Theodore was a woman of courage, determination and compassion. From a young age she faced many challenges, yet entered religious life with the Sisters of Providence of Ruillé sur-Loir, France. Saint Mother Theodore was sent to various parishes in France where she taught, helped the poor and cared for the sick. When the bishop of Vincennes, Indiana requested sisters to come to the New World to help with the influx of Catholic immigrants, Saint Mother Theodore traveled for nearly three months with her five companions to the remote wilderness known as Saint Mary-of-the-Woods. Despite the obstacles, Saint Mother Theodore was able to open an academy for girls in less than a year. She continued to establish schools throughout Indiana and Eastern Illinois, opened two orphanages in Vincennes and free pharmacies at Saint Mary-of-the-Woods and Vincennes. Remembered as a woman devoted to prayer, an educator, caregiver and leader, her love and respect for nature is still evident in her beloved woods. Saint Mother Theodore died May 14, 1856 and was canonized on Oct. 15, 2006.

Sisters of St. Francis, Oldenburg

The Sisters of St. Francis in Oldenburg, IN began with 24 year-old Sister Theresa (Genevieve) Hackelmeier's journey from Vienna, Austria to establish a new congregation in southeastern Indiana. In addition to their local educational ministry, they cared for orphans, maintained a garden presided over by Sister Michaela Lindemann (later the farm), and became pioneers in education, opening schools across the Midwest and founding Marian College in 1936 as a liberal arts and teacher education college. The Sisters of St. Francis have long maintained a responsive engagement with the social conditions of the time - in 1892 opening the only school for African American children in segregated Indianapolis, undertaking missionary work among Native Americans in the western US, and embarking on foreign missions. Today the Sisters of St. Francis continue to sponsor Marian University (now in Indianapolis) and Oldenburg Academy as well as supporting the ministries of Michaela Farm, Oldenburg Franciscan Center, and the Nia Kuumba spirituality center in St. Louis, MO. Throughout 167 years, the Sisters have continued to carry out the vital mission of living and spreading the Gospel.

Camp Rancho Framasa

The original 280 acres of land where CYO Camp Rancho Framasa is located was donated by Bert Dingley in 1946. Dingley was the first champion of the organization that would later become involved with Indy Car Racing. Dingley donated the land to the Archdiocese of Indianapolis to be used as a summer camp for the youth of the Church. His one stipulation was that the camp be named Rancho Framasa, created by combining the first two letters of his daughters names (FRAncis, MArgaret, and SAMuela). The camp now serves 230 children each week of the summer and is host to many groups year round. Catholic identity and traditions are an integral part of camp. Prayer is a part of each day. Campers learn that we are called to walk humbly with God: putting others before ourself and being in the present moment with the camp community. Camp Rancho Framasa also focuses on living simply and being stewards of the earth. Camp staff are role models who are supported on their personal faith and professional journeys. The camp is known for its inclusive philosophy where campers of all abilities participate together in one inclusive environment, receiving state & national awards.

Mary's Children & The Farm

Mary's Children is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to provide a haven of peace and prayer for those who come to the Mother of the Redeemer Retreat Center ("The Farm"). The name Mary's Children was given by the Blessed Virgin Mary in a message to Ruth Ann Wade. Deeply moved and guided by messages Ruth Ann began receiving from our Lord Jesus and His Blessed Mother in the early 90's, Ruth Ann and Jim Wade, gave up their home, their farm, and the future they had planned, dedicating their land in Bloomington, Indiana to the Mother of Jesus. (The Messages have been published by Mary's Children in four volumes of: Lessons and Messages to the World from Jesus and the Blessed Virgin Mary.) As Ruth Ann's prayer group grew and more pilgrims came to The Farm, outdoor prayer paths, a Chapel, Retreat Center, and Guesthouse were erected. In 1999 the Archdiocese of Indianapolis gave permission to reserve the Blessed Sacrament in the Chapel and in 2005, the Franciscan Friars of the Immaculate arrived at The Farm to begin their ministry in Bloomington Indiana and support the needs of the Retreat Center.

Saint Meinrad & the Archabbey

Saint Meinrad (b. circa 800) was a Benedictine monk who had a reputation as a wise and holy man despite living as a hermit for much of his life. He was murdered by two robbers after inviting them in for food and drink (despite having a premonition of his impending death), thus earning him the title "Martyr of Hospitality." His hermitage became the site of the Benedictine Abbey of Einsiedeln in Switzerland. In 1854 a local priest in southern Indiana requested the presence of these monks from Switzerland to help serve the pastoral needs of the growing German-speaking community and to prepare local men to be priests. Upon establishing the abbey, it was named after Saint Meinrad. Education and priest formation remain part of Saint Meinrad's ministry, as the monastery operates a graduate seminary and school of theology and has other monks in parish work, chaplaincies and diocesan assignments. The monks live by the Rule of St. Benedict and with the motto ora et labora (pray and work). They gather in community five times each day to pray and celebrate Mass.

Monastery Immaculate Conception

The Sisters of St. Benedict came to Ferdinand, IN, in 1867 from St. Walburg Monastery in Covington, KY to fill a need for teachers who could speak German. The community rapidly grew and the teaching ministry expanded to more than 75 schools in 12 states and 5 countries, plus a training school for teachers (Saint Benedict College). The 20th century was a time of great expansion, yet by the end, the Ferdinand Benedictines, like all religious communities, experienced declining numbers and corporate changes — among them, the closing of St. Benedict College and Marian Heights Academy. But with the losses came growth, new life, and new opportunities. In 1978, they opened a retreat center to offer programs for spiritual renewal and personal growth. St. Benedict's Brew Works was opened in 2015 in what had been the Academy's art building and the Academy's gymnasium was converted into Monastery Event Hall. Benet Hall was transformed into affordable housing for senior citizens in 2016. Today, Monastery Immaculate Conception stands as a tangible sign of the sisters' enduring faith. Truly - "all guests who present themselves are welcomed as Christ."

Franciscan Spirituality

Franciscan Spirituality is an incarnational, earthy spirituality; God is close to Creation, not far away, “up there.” As St. Bonaventure put it, God bends down to us, lifting us up. The Franciscan way of life hinges on the synthesis of action and contemplation; prayer leads to work and ministry, work and ministry bring us back to prayer. Franciscans have a profound reverence for the human person as one made in the Image and Likeness of God and understand that Creation and the World, despite the impact of Sin, remain fundamentally Good as Gifts from God. In its witness to Fraternity, Franciscans have an appreciation of and reverence for the individual within the global community. Franciscan Spirituality acknowledges the necessity of human work and strives to uphold the value of human labor and the dignity of workers; it insists on a commitment to social justice by striving for solidarity with the poor and marginalized; it seeks to give concrete expression of and commitment to global and local peacemaking by seeking and initiating the process of reconciliation.
